Fortunately there are not many unoccupied houses in which such dastards can secrete and carry their purpose quietly into effect. to see that no rogue is entertained unawares. present.

The magnitude of the disaster of Christmas, 1878, should be sufficient to impress the residents with the extreme importance of using every possible precaution against the repetition of such a calamity. It must not be forgotten that, owing to Sir John Pork Hen-NESSK's procrastination; there is still a very limited supply of water, quite insufficient, it is to be feared, to enable the Fire Brigade to grapple with a large fire in a high wind during the dry season. The Fire Brigade is doubtless more efficient and it possesses some new and powerful fire engines, but unless a tainable their offerts would be neutralised, and prove impotent in the presence of the atical are the chances of the Fire Brigade in a contest with a fierco conflagration on a windy night, attention should be carnestly Chinese are unfortunately singularly reckless in their use of matches, and their habit of burning joss-paper in close contiguity to the wood-work of their dwellingsisalso a source of great danger. Another peril lies in the large stores of firewood and other combustible materials which many of them collect on their verandahe, and which could not be readily removed in the event of a fire breaking out in the same premises. Many of the Chinese houses also have flat wooden platforms or other eractions on the roofs which they use for drying provisions and clothes. These wooden fabrics should not be allowed in a city so closely built as Victoria. If dealers in dried meat, &c., wish to use their roofs for the purposes of their trade they should be compelled to construct flat tiled or cemented roofs similar to those in Macao used for the purpose. The Government have wisely forbidden the erection of any more wooden) verandahs, and they have also issued regulations for the safe storage of kerosene they would only be following up their good work if they were to prohibit the erection of any wooden platform or enclosure on the roofs of the houses. There is some excuse for the manner in which the Chinese too often make storerooms of their verandahs in the fact that they seldom or never have any yard in which to place such goods. While, finement. however, we would deprecate any inconsiderate interference with the habits of the Chinese, who are obliged, by the high rentals, the 12th instant. to crowd together, effectual means must be guard against the occurrence of so appalling a disaster as a great fire always proves in a crowded city. That there are other dangers than those enumerated above we make no without trouble, probably, by the Inspectors of Police. -We throw out these few augges-

The fortnight just concluded has been exceptionally eventful, catastrophes coming thick to gether. The first fire of the season occurred on the 5th instant in Tuipingshau, when three houses were destroyed and one person burned to death; on the 6th instant the boiler of the steam-launch Fai-Lung exploded, blowing the craft high into the air and causing the deaths of seven persons on board; on the 7th a house next to those destroyed by fire on the 5th came down with a ran, burying twelve persons, two of whom were killed outright; and on the same morning a man named Gray committed suicide at the Temperance Hall under very shocking circumstances. Amusements have also been plentiful. On the 31st ult. the Portuguese community colebrated the birthday of Uis Most Faithful Majesty by giving a very pleasant soire at the Club Lusi tano. The Buff's Dramatic Amsteurs gave two performances at the Theatre Royal, City Hall, on the 6th and 7th inst., which were largely attended and proved very successful; and the Italian Opera Company have given two performacces at the Theatre Royal, producing "Il Trovatore" and "Ruy Blas," the first on the 9th, and the latter on the 11th instant. The damage done to property, shipping, and crops at Manila by the disastrous typhoon of the 20th October has proved to be immense.

Several of the vessels driven ashore have become total losses, others are grievously damaged while nearly all the buildings in Manila have suffered more or less, thousands being either laid low or unroofed. Two theatres have been destroyed, the other much injured, while all the churches, convents, and public buildings have sustained some damage. Thousands of persons were rendered homeless. On the 5th instant, to complete the tale of disaster, another severe hurricane swept over the city causing serious loss from the widesproad damage it effected. No details of the second disaster are yet to hand, only telegraphic advices having been received. The French corvette Kersaint, Captain Bean. mont, arrived here on the 1st instant, from Yokohama. The British corvette Bacounter, Captain G. Robinson, arrived on the 10th from Foochow, and the Italian corvette Cristofore Colombo, Captain Labrano, arrived on the same day from Shanghai.

A telegram was received in town on the 4th instant announcing that the American ship Sea Witch, bound from this port to New York, had put into Singapore in distress, having been damaged in a collision with a steamer. We have since received somé partioulars. It appears that on the 30th ult. the Sea- Witch came into colliaion with the British gunboat Fly, carrying away that vessel's shroud and ham mock netting and damaging two of her boats. The Sea Witch carried away her jibboom and part of her figure head and put into Singapore on the 2nd instant to repair damage. It is believed that a Courtof Inquiry will be held to investigate the cir-

We regret to learn that Captain Field, of the American ship Mary L. Stone, and Captain Swap, of the American ship Nearchus, both yes. sels lying in Manile, have succumbed to cholera. That dreaded epidemic appears to have broken out afresh after the typhoon of the 20th ultime instead of, as was hoped, disappearing altogether. We learn that a mercantile firm in this Colony has received a telegram stating that contracts were made on the 2nd instant in Condon for a new set of submarine telegraph cables to connect Hongkong and the seaboard ports of China with Shanghai and Japan. A Company had been previously formed for the purpose. No further details are given, save that all the capital has been subscribed.

About a questor most five o'clock p.m. on the 12th inst. an re was given from the Contral Station string a fire in the Central district. It turned out to be the ignition of the chimney of one of the houses at the back of Club Chambers. Fortunately the fire was observed in its early stages, and a few buckets of water passed from the back verandah of the China Mail office on to the roof of the house were suffi. cient to drench the chimney and pat the fire out. A few of the firemen were soon on the spot, but their services were not required.

The returns of Registrar-General of the births and deaths in this Colony for the third quarter of the current year are published in Saturday's Gazetic. The number of births among the British and foreign community were 36, the number of deaths 39; among the Chinese community there were 317 births and 1,293 deaths. The deaths among the British and foreign comsidents 9. The annual death rate per 1,000 for the quarter was—for the whole population, 33,21; British and foreign community 16.0%, or, deduct. ing non-residents 14.53; Chinese, 34.32.

On the 7th instant a meeting of the Victoria Chapter 525, Royal Arch Freemasons, was held at the Masonic Hall, on which occasion most Excellent Companion J. T. Chater was presented with the jewel of a Past First Principal. An. was also presented to Companion J., Kenting, The jewels were presented as marks of appreciation on the part of the Companions of the excellent services of those brothren to the Chapter, Mr. Chater having most ably filled the honourable office of First Principal, whilst Mr.

Two other cargo boats have been auchored over the spot where the Lei Lung went down after her boiler exploded, and, like the other two. these have a large spar, fixed so that it can be made to revolve, across them, and from this a chain is passed under the other and of the wreck, so that it can be bauled up at both ends. The rough weather on the 8th inst, prevented anything being done in the way of getting the remains of the launch to the surface. What rais. ing has already been done would seem to have liberated two of the bodies of the four missing men, as they have been picked up; much mangled, one of the bodies being decapitated. They were conveyed to the Government Civil Hospital and shortly afterwards buried.

We are sorry to find that the rumour current during the fire on Sunday, the 5th instate the effect that there were some persons who had not es. caped from the house has proved correct after all, On Friday the charred remains of a woman, one of the inmates of the brothel in which the fire originated, were found in the cookhouse under the débris. We also hear that a child of seven years of age is missing, though the police state the mother of the latter informed them that she saw the child leave the brothel. The unfortunate woman who has mot this terrible fate was in her room on the second floor when the alarm was raised, and no doubt before she got to the staircase her retreat was cut off by the flames. The fire originated in the cook left of the room of the mistress of the bouse just underneath the staircase, and the stairs were in flames almost directly afterwards. An old woman was on the same floor as the deceased, and she escaped by the stairs, but before she could get down the fire had obtained such a hold of the staircase that she was scorohed and her hair singed. deceased woman did not so quickly make for the stairs and probably stayed a few moments for the purpose of saving some article of value, and thus lost her opportunity of escaping. A strong smell first indicated to the contractor who is engaged pulling down the rains that there was probably some body buried in the place, and he set a gang of men to work to get the rubbish away. The deceased woman's name was Wong Tsing Tsoi. The child who is said to be missing was also upon the second floor. An inquest was opened on the remains at the Civil Hospital on the 11th inst. before the Coroner and Messrs F. H. Hobuke, C. A. da Silva, and A. J. do Rozario, but it was remanded-till the 17th inst to enable the police to search for the mistress of the brothel, who is at present not to be found the Coroner deeming her evidence desirable.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT. 1st November. On Saturday last Senhor da Silva arrived here in the steemer White Cloud, having come out from Lisbon by the last French mail; to take up his post as Judge in this colony vice Senhor Braga d'Oliveira, who will, I hear, shortly procrothome, probably by the next French mail. Unring his stay here Senhor d'Oliveira has won the esteem and goodwill of the community not only by the impartial discharge of his judicial functions but also by his courtesy and affability in private to his numerous friends. I am sure they will all heartily units in wishing him bon voyage, and prosperity in his future career.

Senhor da Silva has been sworn in and taken his scat on the Bench. Yesterday, being the birthday of His Majesty the King of Portugal the usual reception was held at precisely three o'clock p.m. by His Excellency Senhor da Graca, the Governor, in honour of the anniversary. A guard of honour composed of the National Guard was drawn up in front of the Palace, while on the right and left a guard of artillery commanded by a captain were posted, with four guns, and on the hour striking the ceremony began, the band of the Police Force played the National Anthem, and the Artillery fired a salute of twenty-one guns. At nightfall the illuminations commenced, and lasted until twelve o'clook. From the Public Gardens to Mesars. De Mello & Co.'s offices, painted bamboos were ranged, about three yards apart, and surmounted by small flags of different nations. Between each bamboo, were suspended on cords three Japanese lanterns, the long range of which looked extremely pretty, and shed a soft warm light upon the scene. An ornamental matshed was erected opposite to the Paluce, in which the Band played at intervals. This erecmunity are thus classified:—British and foreign, tion was draped in white sheeting with a painted frontispiece on which His Majesty's portrait was displayed. Many private houses were also illuminated, most of them with Japanese lanterns. The British Consulate, in my opinion, was the most profusely and tastefully illuminated, but the Gremio Militar (Military Club) was also elegautly lighted up, and looked extremely well, The Procuratura dos Negocios Sinicos was
